The next day they toured the whole city, the kind of life Ross is living is like a king. But still one of his desires is troubling him again and again.

They go back to their town, when Jim once again asks Ross what his wish is.

So Ross tells that thing to Jim, Jim is very laughs to hear Ross's words.

Jim laughs and says, this is very strange, I can't do anything.

What can I do, no one can do anything.

Ross says, yes I know but I am sad about this.

After several days, Ross goes away from the city, and he sees a beautiful tree on the way, Ross stops the car and sits at a place in front of that tree,

And after some time an old man comes to Ross, and sits with him, they become friends, and they talk about a lot of things.

The old man says that you are a very good person but why do you get sad again and again. Ross says I have a weird wish, but everyone I tell it to starts laughing,

The old man says, you want to go back to the old days?

Ross says, how did you know, the old man says, I am an experienced person. I understood from your words that you are remembering your childhood days.

Ross says emotionally, I wish I could go back to those old days. I still remember that day

Ross says, the best time of life was childhood, you left so much behind.

The old man smiles and tells Ross to come with him.

He takes him to a beautiful tree bearing many fruits. The old man says, look at this tree, it was also once small and very beautiful.

But even today it is very beautiful, but today it can give fruits to the people.

You can understand what I mean.

A slight smile appears on Ross's face and he says yes.

The old man says, let's assume that I will send you back to the old days.

But I have a condition, whatever you have today, you will lose it all.

Ross is shocked to hear this.

The old man says do you understand what I want to say. The old man says, think about all the knowledge you have today, all the friends and characters you have, all that was not there then, and it is obvious that if you could go back to those old days, all the things now you have. you Will lost.

Ross listens to the old man and hugs him. Ross says, I understand everything. No, now I don't want to go back to the old days.

The old man says, when you were coming here, you were coming just like that, you had no destination, you just wanted to roam around.

Now think about how many paths and turns you had, but if you had taken even one any more turn, I would not be talking to you. Or maybe we never meet . Coincidence is good and great part of life.

Ross says you're right. I have understood everything and my problem has also gone away.
